School reaccredited for empowering student's voices

Written by Ellie Rose

What if a school could help change the world, one child at a time? Rickmansworth Park JMI has been doing that by empowering pupils to understand their rights and use them to create positive change.

That commitment has once again been recognised with a prestigious Gold reaccreditation from UNICEF UK's Rights Respecting Schools programme, announced on Wednesday, December 17.

One of the first primary schools in southwest Hertfordshire to join the programme in 2017, Rickmansworth Park JMI first achieved Gold status in 2019 and has successfully maintained the award since.

Gold accreditation is given to schools that fully embed the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child into all areas of school life.

Inspectors praised the school's nurturing family atmosphere and strong partnerships with parents and carers.

The school's restorative approach was also highlighted in the report. With a strong focus on wellbeing and global citizenship, Rickmansworth Park JMI is showing what can be achieved when children's rights are truly at the heart of education.
